

Number portability for wireless phones is very important to me, my employees and my customers. The current system prevents us from improving our service because we have substantial costs in changing. (Business cards, letterheads, pre-programmed numbers, business disruptions, lost orders, ...)

The providers know this and like it.

If we are freer to switch providers we will find who has better service for our own areas. I believe this will also help the providers. They will not need to provide service everywhere - they will be able to either claim or neglect those regions where the business is sufficient for only a couple of providers.

This item is more important to me than better service, even though I cannot use my mobile phone in the locality where my factory is located.

Sincerely
